July 2015 ~ DC City Wide Welfare Rights Child Development Center

DC City Wide Welfare Rights Child Development Center (DC City Wide CDC) is pleased to announce they received their first accreditation from the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC)! This is a significant accomplishment because receiving accreditation was a big dream of their late director and founder, Mrs. Etta Horn-Prather. The center staff vowed to work hard and continue the pursuit of accreditation to show their commitment and dedication to providing quality care to children and their families.

DC City Wide CDC is located in Ward 8 and has been in business for over ten years serving infants, toddlers and pre-school age children. Center Director Linda Hamilton excels in providing a nurturing and responsive environment for young children.
