UPDATE: FREE SUMMER MEALS PROGRAM SITES OPEN FOR DISTRICT CHILDREN TO AGE 18

Up to Two Daily Meals Served without Income, Residency Restrictions, Identification not required

Washington, DC – In response to the District of Columbia’s declared state of emergency, the Office of the State Superintendent of Education (OSSE) has posted a listing of citywide Free Summer Meals Program (FSMP) sites open to serve up to two meals a day to District infants and children up to age 18 or with disabilities.

Identification is not required, and those arriving on-site during the posted time and location will be served meals free of charge, regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, family responsibilities, political affiliation, disability, source of income, or place of residence or business.

Note: Additional information about FSMP open meal sites, available services and citywide emergency updates are available online at www.hsema.dc.gov.
