Unaccompanied Homeless Youth & Youth at Risk of Homelessness Documentation of Independent Student Status for the FAFSA & DCTAG Verification Guide (2018–19 School Year)

Purpose

The purpose of this guide is to provide guidance to homeless liaisons that are completing the Unaccompanied Homeless Youth & Youth at Risk of Homelessness Documentation of Independent Student Status for the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and DC Tuition Assistance Grant (DCTAG) form on behalf of students who are applying for college financial aid in the District of Columbia.

With the passage of the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) which amended the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act (MKV):

- Local education agency (LEA) homeless liaisons are now required to
 - inform unaccompanied homeless youth of their status as an independent student when applying for college financial aid.
 - help unaccompanied homeless youth to obtain assistance to receive verification for the FAFSA. 20 U.S.C. §11432(g)(6)(A)(x)(III)
- LEA and school-based homeless liaisons can complete this form on behalf of their identified unaccompanied homeless students who are applying for college financial aid. The completed form waives the requirement to report parents'/guardians' financial information. This became effective beginning in the 2017-18 school year.
- School counselors are required to advise, prepare, and improve the readiness of all youth experiencing homelessness for college. 20 U.S.C. §11432(g)(1)(K)

Identifying Unaccompanied Homeless Youth & Youth at Risk of Homelessness

Students who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residency are considered to be experiencing homelessness. This includes temporarily living with other people because he/she has nowhere else to go; living in substandard housing (if it doesn't meet local building codes or the utilities are turned off, it is generally not adequate); living in emergency or transitional shelters (e.g., trailers provided by the Federal Emergency Management Agency after disasters); or living in motels, camping grounds, cars, parks, abandoned buildings, bus or train stations, or any public or private place not designed for humans to live in. It also includes living in the school dormitory if the student would otherwise be homeless. A student living in any of these situations and fleeing an abusive parent may be considered homeless even if the parent would provide support and a place to live.¹

If a student has been identified by the LEA as an unaccompanied homeless youth or youth at risk of homelessness, the LEA or school-based homeless liaison, financial aid administrator (FAA) of the student’s college, or a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funded shelter director or designee or a Runaway and Homeless Youth Act (RHYA) funded shelter director or designee may complete an Unaccompanied Homeless Youth Documentation of Independent Student Status form on behalf of the student. The liaison must determine if the student is an unaccompanied youth who is experiencing homelessness or is self-supporting and at risk of being homeless. The LEA or school-based homeless liaison should make homeless youth determinations for financial aid purposes on a case-by-case basis.

The U.S. Department of Education’s guidance states that liaisons may continue to make a determination of a youth’s status as either unaccompanied and homeless, or as self-supporting and at risk of being homeless, for as long as the liaison has access to the information necessary to make such a determination for a particular youth. Liaisons may write subsequent year letters of verification for unaccompanied homeless youth through age 23 if they have the necessary information to write such a letter. If a liaison doesn’t have the information that is necessary to make the determination, either because the youth became homeless after high school, or because the liaison is no longer familiar with the youth’s circumstances, the financial aid administrator (of the student’s college or university) must make the determination.²
