I THINK MY CHILD’S NEEDS MAY HAVE CHANGED
I THINK MY CHILD’S NEEDS MAY HAVE CHANGED

1. I think my child’s needs may have changed. What could this mean and what can families do?

   Families may notice changes in their child’s needs throughout the school year. These changes could be due to various factors such as growth, maturation, or new learning goals. It is important for families to communicate these changes with their child’s school and special education team. They should discuss the impact of these changes on the IEP and the services provided. Families can also seek additional resources or support if needed.

2. How can families support their child’s learning and development?

   Families can support their child’s learning and development by being proactive and engaged. They can communicate with their child’s teacher and special education team to understand their child’s needs and progress. Families can also work on building skills at home and creating a supportive environment that encourages learning. They can also seek additional resources or support if needed. If families have concerns or questions, they should reach out to their local school district or other resources.

3. How can families access additional support and resources?

   Families can access additional support and resources by reaching out to their local school district or other resources. They can contact the Office of Special Education (OSE) for guidance and support. Families can also seek support from local organizations or advocacy groups. Families can also seek support from local volunteers or other community resources. It is important for families to be proactive and seek out resources to support their child’s education and development.

SPECIAL EDUCATION RESOURCE HUB: What Families & Students Need This Year.

COVID-19 has been a challenging year for everyone. At OSSE, we understand that families and students may have changed and adapted to new circumstances. We are here to support you.

1. IEP Updates:
   - Parents are encouraged to contact their IEP teams to discuss any changes in their child's needs.
   - Teachers and administrators should review IEPs to ensure they reflect current needs.

2. Remote Learning:
   - Ensure that students have access to appropriate resources and accommodations.
   - Regular communication with families is crucial.

3. Virtual Support:
   - Utilize virtual platforms to provide additional support.
   - Schedule regular check-ins with students and their families.

4. Emergency Planning:
   - Prepare for emergencies and updates on school closures or changes.
   - Keep emergency plans up-to-date.

Parents are encouraged to reach out to their child’s teacher or school administrator for any questions or concerns.
